WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING?
Human trafficking is a crime involving the recruitment, transportation, transfer, sale, or purchase of a person for purposes of forced labor, commercial sex, or servitude. It is a violation of the federal definition of a “victim of severe forms of trafficking in persons.” The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) uses the seven-factor Action-Means-Purpose (AMP) Model to help identify human trafficking situations based on the actions of traffickers. This model was developed in partnership with the UNC School of Social Work and state agencies, and it is used by human trafficking screening tools to assist child- and youth-serving agencies in identifying possible victims. Organizations that serve at-risk populations, such as runaway/homeless youth and youth involved in child welfare or juvenile justice, understand that questions designed to screen for human trafficking situations are invasive by nature and may reveal that a youth is suffering. Organizations are encouraged to use a trauma-informed approach.

WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING? (continued)
Human trafficking is a crime involving the recruitment, transportation, transfer, sale, or purchase of a person for purposes of forced labor, commercial sex, or servitude. It is a violation of the federal definition of a “victim of severe forms of trafficking in persons.” The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) uses the seven-factor Action-Means-Purpose (AMP) Model to help identify human trafficking situations based on the actions of traffickers. This model was developed in partnership with the UNC School of Social Work and state agencies, and it is used by human trafficking screening tools to assist child- and youth-serving agencies in identifying possible victims. Organizations that serve at-risk populations, such as runaway/homeless youth and youth involved in child welfare or juvenile justice, understand that questions designed to screen for human trafficking situations are invasive by nature and may reveal that a youth is suffering. Organizations are encouraged to use a trauma-informed approach.

WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING? (continued)
Human trafficking is a crime involving the recruitment, transportation, transfer, sale, or purchase of a person for purposes of forced labor, commercial sex, or servitude. It is a violation of the federal definition of a “victim of severe forms of trafficking in persons.” The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) uses the seven-factor Action-Means-Purpose (AMP) Model to help identify human trafficking situations based on the actions of traffickers. This model was developed in partnership with the UNC School of Social Work and state agencies, and it is used by human trafficking screening tools to assist child- and youth-serving agencies in identifying possible victims. Organizations that serve at-risk populations, such as runaway/homeless youth and youth involved in child welfare or juvenile justice, understand that questions designed to screen for human trafficking situations are invasive by nature and may reveal that a youth is suffering. Organizations are encouraged to use a trauma-informed approach.

WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING? (continued)
Human trafficking is a crime involving the recruitment, transportation, transfer, sale, or purchase of a person for purposes of forced labor, commercial sex, or servitude. It is a violation of the federal definition of a “victim of severe forms of trafficking in persons.” The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) uses the seven-factor Action-Means-Purpose (AMP) Model to help identify human trafficking situations based on the actions of traffickers. This model was developed in partnership with the UNC School of Social Work and state agencies, and it is used by human trafficking screening tools to assist child- and youth-serving agencies in identifying possible victims. Organizations that serve at-risk populations, such as runaway/homeless youth and youth involved in child welfare or juvenile justice, understand that questions designed to screen for human trafficking situations are invasive by nature and may reveal that a youth is suffering. Organizations are encouraged to use a trauma-informed approach.

WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING? (continued)
Human trafficking is a crime involving the recruitment, transportation, transfer, sale, or purchase of a person for purposes of forced labor, commercial sex, or servitude. It is a violation of the federal definition of a “victim of severe forms of trafficking in persons.” The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) uses the seven-factor Action-Means-Purpose (AMP) Model to help identify human trafficking situations based on the actions of traffickers. This model was developed in partnership with the UNC School of Social Work and state agencies, and it is used by human trafficking screening tools to assist child- and youth-serving agencies in identifying possible victims. Organizations that serve at-risk populations, such as runaway/homeless youth and youth involved in child welfare or juvenile justice, understand that questions designed to screen for human trafficking situations are invasive by nature and may reveal that a youth is suffering. Organizations are encouraged to use a trauma-informed approach.